

Talk to your employer

Over 80% of conference attendees' costs are paid by their employers. Why not give it a try?

RISKCON
BY AAPC

Usable knowledge. Visible results.

Keeping yourself informed and up to date benefits not only you, but your entire company. You'll learn how to navigate key issues, how to make your processes more efficient, and you'll come home with best practices and important industry updates in risk adjustment — all of which can have a significant impact on your company's bottom line if applied.

Here's how to get your employer to send you to RISKCON:

- 1 Be prepared. We'll be announcing our agenda soon. When available, review the agenda and highlight sessions that complement your job and the needs of your office.
- 2 Focus on continuing education. Tell your supervisor that this 2-day virtual event is a great way for you to earn CEUs, along with gaining insight on best practices from leading experts in the industry.
- 3 Don't be afraid to ask. Being as specific as you can, let your supervisor know how the knowledge you'll take away from RISKCON can help you and your team.

With these three steps, we're confident you can at least make a strong case for having your company cover your attendance.

The educational content was presented in a simple way for understanding and to take back to the workplace for easy sharing and implementation.

The education made available at RiskCon was amazing. It was a perfect forum for provider and facility risk coders to gain knowledge and add contacts for networking in our VERY small corner of coding. This was very worthwhile.
