HEALTHCON
2025
Orlando, FL

Over 80% of AAPC conference attendees' costs are covered by employers.

The fresh strategies, insight, and knowledge you acquire at our biggest annual conference will not only positively impact you, but your entire workplace. That's why many employers send their staff to HEALTHCON and recognize it as a valuable opportunity.

Tips for getting your boss on board:

- 1 Prepare your "why." Review the conference agenda (coming soon) and make note of sessions that'll strengthen your existing skills or help you develop new ones. Circle it back to how these session topics relate to your employer's needs and your work.
- 2 Highlight the educational opportunities. Mention a few of the many experts you'll get to learn from and the insight you'll gain from them on industry changes, trends, and best practices. Don't forget to point out the 18 CEUs you'll be earning as well!
- 3 Emphasize your commitment to the team. When discussing HEALTHCON with your employer, make it about your office or practice. Your efficiency, accuracy, and confidence in your role directly impacts your team's workflow and the company's revenue cycle. Also, let them know WiFi is available onsite so you can stay connected to the office throughout the conference as needed.

By using these steps, we're confident you can make a strong case to convince your business decision maker to supply your registration for HEALTHCON 2025.

- Association for Talent and Development (ATD)

Companies that invest in employee training enjoy 218% higher revenue per employee versus companies that don't.
